GLOSSARY

Artistic Expression	the process of conveying ideas, emotions, and experiences through various forms of art, including painting, literature, music, and performance. It serves as a reflection of cultural values and societal issues, allowing artists to communicate their unique perspectives and connect with audiences on a deeper level.
Creative Commons	a system of free, standardized licenses that allow creators to grant the public permission to use, share, and sometimes modify their work under specified conditions, such as attribution or non-commercial use.
Creative Industry	refers to the trades involving persons, whether natural or juridical, that produce cultural, artistic, and innovative goods and services originating in human creativity, skill, and talent and having a potential to create wealth and livelihood through the generation and utilization of intellectual property. Creative industries include those directly or indirectly involved in the creation, production, and manufacturing, performance, broadcasting, communication, and exhibition, or distribution and sale of works and other subject matter, in accordance with existing laws, rules, and regulations on intellectual property rights protection (Republic Act No. 11904).
Creative work	an original product of human imagination and skill, typically in art, literature, music, or design that expresses unique ideas and is protected by intellectual property laws, such as copyright.

Fair Use	a legal doctrine that allows limited use of copyrighted material without permission from the copyright owner for purposes such as education, criticism, commentary, news reporting, teaching, scholarship, or research.
Generative artificial intelligence (AI)	refers to computer systems that can create original content such as text, images, music, or designs based on data training. Issues of intellectual property ownership arise when determining who owns the rights to AI-generated outputs—whether it is the user, the developer, or no one—especially when such outputs are derived from existing copyrighted materials.
Intellectual property (IP)	refers to creations of the mind, such as inventions; literary and artistic works; designs; and symbols, names, and images used in commerce
Industry Mapping	a systematic process of identifying and analyzing the key stakeholders, roles, relationships, networks, and structures within an industry to understand how its various sectors and participants interact and contribute to its development.
Infringement	refers to the unauthorized use of protected intellectual property (such as copyrighted works, trademarks, or patents) in violation of the owner’s rights.
IP theft	is the deliberate and often illegal act of copying, stealing, or using intellectual property without permission, typically for personal or commercial gain.
Plagiarism	the act of using another person’s ideas, words, or creative work without proper acknowledgment or citation, presenting them as one’s own original work.
Practices	those that are done on a regular basis, as a habit, tradition, or custom.
Poor Man’s Copyright	an informal practice of mailing a copy of one’s original work to oneself and keeping it sealed as proof of authorship and date of creation. It is sometimes believed to establish copyright ownership; however, it is not legally recognized as a reliable or official form of copyright protection in many jurisdictions.

APPENDIX

Suggested Case Studies for IP Discussions

Dali Copyright Infringement Issue (2024)

Convenience Store DALI was recently accused of copyright infringement through their sale of products that closely resemble other, more established consumer brands. The controversy touches on the blurred lines between inspiration and exploitation in consumer markets, raising questions about intellectual property and originality in commerce.

Wolfgang Vinyl Reissue Issue vs Ivory Records (2024)

In 2024, Ivory Records announced a vinyl reissue of iconic rock band Wolfgang's music. Backlash arose when Wolfgang announced it would not be supporting the release because of unfair royalties and other concerns. This controversy highlights broader concerns in the local music industry about artist rights, copyright control, and the ethics of reissuing legacy content without full consent from original creators.

Hapag and La Paz Batchoy (2024)

The discussion around "Hapag" and La Paz Batchoy emerged after the release of a contemporary artwork or exhibit titled Hapag, which was perceived by some to recontextualize or stylize the traditional Filipino dish La Paz Batchoy in a way that seemed disconnected from its culinary and cultural roots. The issue brings to light the challenges present between artistic reinterpretation and cultural authenticity, especially when everyday symbols of heritage are reimagined in art spaces, raising valuable questions about representation, respect, and accessibility in the arts.
