APPENDIX

Suggested Case Studies for IP Discussions

Dali Copyright Infringement Issue (2024)

Convenience Store DALI was recently accused of copyright infringement through their sale of products that closely resemble other, more established consumer brands. The controversy touches on the blurred lines between inspiration and exploitation in consumer markets, raising questions about intellectual property and originality in commerce.

Wolfgang Vinyl Reissue Issue vs Ivory Records (2024)

In 2024, Ivory Records announced a vinyl reissue of iconic rock band Wolfgang's music. Backlash arose when Wolfgang announced it would not be supporting the release because of unfair royalties and other concerns. This controversy highlights broader concerns in the local music industry about artist rights, copyright control, and the ethics of reissuing legacy content without full consent from original creators.

Hapag and La Paz Batchoy (2024)

The discussion around "Hapag" and La Paz Batchoy emerged after the release of a contemporary artwork or exhibit titled Hapag, which was perceived by some to recontextualize or stylize the traditional Filipino dish La Paz Batchoy in a way that seemed disconnected from its culinary and cultural roots. The issue brings to light the challenges present between artistic reinterpretation and cultural authenticity, especially when everyday symbols of heritage are reimagined in art spaces, raising valuable questions about representation, respect, and accessibility in the arts.
