PERFORMANCE CRITICISM AND CREATIVE MARKETS

Prerequisite:

Any of the following:

Creative Industries - Music

Creative Industries - Dance

Creative Industries - Theater Arts

Course Description:

This elective develops learners' ability to critically analyze, evaluate, and communicate informed responses to artistic performances in music, dance, theater, and interdisciplinary forms, while introducing them to the creative market in which performances are produced, promoted, and sustained. Learners explore the principles and processes of performance criticism, including description, analysis, interpretation, and judgment, and apply these skills to live and recorded performances with sensitivity to cultural context and ethical practice. The course also examines the creative market ecosystem, highlighting audience engagement, platforms for criticism, basic creative entrepreneurship, and emerging opportunities in the creative industries. Through written, oral, and digital outputs, students connect critical thinking with market awareness, culminating in a portfolio that demonstrates both artistic discernment and practical understanding of performance related creative work.

Elective: Academic

Time Allotment: 80 hours for one term

Content Standard:

- The learners demonstrate understanding of the socio-cultural, historical, and economic contexts that shape the creation, production, distribution, and reception of performing arts, as well as the principles and practices of performance criticism, audience engagement, and creative markets across music, dance, and theater.

Performance Standard:

- The learners produce a portfolio demonstrating performance criticism and an understanding of creative markets through discipline-appropriate outputs grounded in socio-cultural, historical, and economic contexts.
